Springtime Tips

The sun is shining, the days are longer, and we don't always need to put on our coat to take the dog out for a walk. Yes... Springtime is on its way!!

Easter arrives with the inevitable array of chocolate goodies. Please remember that 'human' chocolate is poisonous to pets. Please don't let children feed it to pets and keep it out of reach.

There are certain bulbs and plants that are hazardous to pets. Please take a look online as there is lots of information about plant hazards. Lilies in particular can be fatal to cats and keep all fertilisers, weedkillers out of reach of pets. If you are using weedkiller, check if you need to keep pets out of the area after you have used it. Also, please take care with slug pellets when gardening as they are toxic to pets.

And the next thing on the list is usually a spring clean in the house. An increase in dust could set off a reaction in your pet, and you need to ensure all cleaning products are kept out of harm's way for your pets. If you think your pet has eaten or drunk something they shouldn't, you must call your vet immediately.

Fleas and ticks will become more active when the warmer weather hits us. Don't forget to speak with your vet about preventative medication. You may need to treat areas of your home too, but please check (particularly if you are buying from a shop) that your flea treatment is suitable for your home. Not all treatments are suitable for dog and cat households.

Consider protecting rabbits against 'flystrike' - regular cleaning of hutches and daily bottom checks!

Finally, Bank Holidays are a great time for a spot of DIY in the house. Again, please keep an eye out for paints, chemicals etc and keep them away from your pet.

Sweet Sugar Eggs

As Easter fast approaches, we thought it would be fun to make something sweet and pretty to eat on Easter Sunday. These sugar eggs are super easy and you can have so much fun with the flavours, colours and decorations you choose!

Sugar Eggs

You will need:

- White fondant icing
- Food colourings
- Candy flavourings (e.g. peppermint, cherry, lemon etc.)
- Decorations (e.g. sprinkles, sugar flowers, edible gold or cake decorating.
- catering or other protective gloves

Directions:

- Put on your protective gloves and divide the fondant icing into portions.
- Add a few drops of food colouring to each piece of icing and massage into the fondant. You can either mix it in thoroughly or choose to leave the colouring with a marbled effect. Be sure to wash and dry your gloves between colours to keep them bright!
- Take pieces of the coloured fondant depending on the size of the egg you wish to make and roll in your hand to form an egg shape, round with one slightly tapered end.
- If you wish to decorate with sprinkles roll your egg shapes in the sprinkles or press them into the surface, rolling your egg in your hand to secure the sprinkles into place.
- Set your undecorated or sprinkled eggs aside for several days to harden up.
- Once hardened, you can decorate with edible gold or mix some fondant with a little water and food colouring to make a paste to paint your eggs with a paint bush.
- You may need to paint one side and allow to dry before decorating the other side.
- Once your eggs are fully dry you can place in a pretty bowl as a sweet treat or give to friends as gifts!

By The Barn by Angela Sargent

Now it's April - doesn't time fly by? Everything is growing well. The grass fields are fertilised and rolled so they are ready for silage making, the arable fields are checked for diseases and pests and the crops are assessed for their nutritional needs too.

For the farmer, soil health is very much in the forefront of his/ her thoughts, as without good soil then you don't get good crops.

Roughly there are about 25 tonnes of micro organisms per hectare. These are made up of 4 tonnes of worms, 10 of fungus and 1 of beetles, amongst others.

So the soil is very much a living thing and we don't want to destroy the balance, it's much better to work with than against and whatever is taken out needs to be put back - something farming detractors do not seem to think we do.

On a wet spring day you will often see earthworms on the surface, but there are many different types that live in different soil layers or types of soil and scientists suggest they live for one to two years in gardens but can live four to eight in field conditions.

There are many Blackbirds about the hedges and they, along with other birds, enjoy a meal of worms, especially as chicks hatch and fledge.

We do not trim hedges at this time of year, nor do we walk on the field margins, if we can help it, in case there are ground nesting birds.

To find out about all things farming, follow Angela on Twitter @bythebarn

Forbidden Foods

Many of us can tell when food doesn't agree with us, whether we feel bloated from eating too big a portion or maybe you suffer from reflux. Sometimes people confuse food intolerances with allergies so we thought that 29th April - 3rd May being 'Allergy Awareness Week' would be a good opportunity to look at the difference and the most common food allergies.

What Is the Difference Between Food Allergy and Food Intolerance?

Food allergy is quite uncommon and normally causes symptoms within a few minutes of eating the offending food or being in contact with the relevant substance. Food intolerance (non-allergic hypersensitivity) is much more common. The onset of food intolerance symptoms is usually slower and may be delayed by many hours after eating the offending food; the symptoms may also last for many hours, even into the next day. Some common food intolerances include lactose intolerance; gluten intolerance and histamine intolerance.

About 90 percent of allergic food reactions are caused by eight foods: milk, eggs, fish, crustacean shellfish, tree nuts, peanuts, wheat and soybeans. There are 14 major food allergens which need to be mentioned (either on a label or through provided information such as menus) when they are used as ingredients in a food product or meal. However you can be allergic to any food substance.

The top 14 food allergens are:

Celery; Cereals containing gluten; Crustaceans; Eggs; Fish; Lupin; Milk; Molluscs; Mustard; Nuts; Peanuts; Sesame seeds; Soya; Sulphur dioxide (sometimes known as sulphites).

The only way to prevent these reactions is by completely avoiding foods that contain allergens you are allergic to; however, this can be challenging because we eat many foods that are comprised of multiple ingredients, and we often eat foods prepared outside our homes by other individuals. Reading and understanding labels along with effectively communicating food allergy risks can be paramount in protecting those with food allergies.

What Are the Symptoms of Food Allergy?

Normally food allergy symptoms appear within a few minutes of eating the offending food, although they may be delayed by up to a couple of hours. The symptoms are usually those of 'classic' allergy, some of which are:

Gut reactions:

Abdominal pain
Vomiting
Diarrhoea

Skin reactions:

Itching
Swelling (rash or nettle rash)

Respiratory reactions:

Runny nose
Sneezing
Wheeze
Cough

For mild allergy symptoms, such as hay fever or hives, give an over-the-counter antihistamine.

If the person has had severe reactions in the past or has any of these symptoms you should call 999:

Difficulty breathing
Hoarseness or trouble speaking
Swollen lips, tongue, or throat
Abdominal pain, or vomiting
Fast heartbeat or pulse
Anxiety or dizziness
Loss of consciousness

Lei May

With spring in full swing and a multitude of bright colours starting to bloom in the hedgerows we love to celebrate the abundance of flowers on show. Many cultures around the world celebrate the beauty of flowers but Hawaii had dedicated the 1st May as 'Lei Day'. A lei is a garland of flowers worn around the neck in Polynesian cultures. Exotic and fragrant these delightful garlands are given to someone for a variety of reasons, symbolising peace, love, honour, or friendship for another person.

Among residents of Hawaii, the most popular occasions at which lei can be found are birthdays, graduations, weddings, funerals, retirement parties, and bridal showers. It is not uncommon for a high school or college graduate to be seen wearing so many lei that they reach their ears!

On May 1st each year, Hawaiians celebrate "Lei Day", first conceived in 1927 by poet Don Blanding. At the time, Blanding was employed by the Honolulu Star Bulletin, and he shared his idea with columnist Grace Tower Warren, who came up with the phrase, "May Day is Lei Day".

Football Finale

It may seem ridiculous to say but we are approaching the end of the 2018/19 football season – it only seems like yesterday that we were putting on our England ‘Shizzle’ and supporting Gareth and the lads as they took on the world in Russia, falling just short of glory as Croatia edged passed us at the semi-final stage.

How proud we were of the young-guns Gareth had put his faith in, as pub landlords everywhere demanded that our waistcoat wearing hero was given a knighthood for services to beer sales!

Once the fervour had died down, we settled into the new domestic season and went back to supporting our teams, hurling abuse (naturally) at opposition players who we had been declaring undying love for whilst they performed in an England shirt – normal service returned!

In a flash; here we are almost at the end of a fabulous season for both domestic and national football fans – now I clearly refer to England fans here because it has most certainly not been a fabulous season if you happen to be Scottish, Welsh or Irish but enough said on that one!

The Premier League is delivering a genuine title race as Manchester City and Liverpool fight it out for the honour of being Champions – there is genuine affection for Liverpool amongst the football public (outside of Manchester obviously) – most of us who can remember their complete ownership of the 1980’s are rooting for the Reds to finally win a Premier League and halt Pep Guardiola’s march towards world domination (for Pep Guardiola read ‘The State of Qatar’) – as I write this, Liverpool sit top of the table by two points but Manchester City have a vital game in hand – it’s going down to the wire, but my prediction is that Liverpool will just have enough!

At the other end of the table both Huddersfield and Fulham are already relegated with Cardiff, Burnley, Southampton, Brighton, Newcastle and Crystal Palace all desperately trying to avoid the drop – After Cardiff were ‘robbed’ of victory against Chelsea this week following a ridiculously poor assistant referee’s decision they look favourites to suffer the ultimate heartbreak and when you add the plane-crash which took the life of their new signing before he had kicked a ball for them, you can’t help but root for the Bluebirds – however, my prediction is that it will indeed be Cardiff who fall through the trap-door and back to the Championship.

Speaking of the Championship – this is also providing great entertainment as we head towards the finishing line.

Norwich City and Leeds United look to have the automatic places locked-down (although Sheffield United could yet insert themselves into that fight) with West Brom and Sheffield United looking certainties for the play-offs.

This leaves eight (yes, eight) clubs still harbouring ambitions of making the final two play-off spots – my prediction is that Aston Villa and Bristol City will complete the play-off picture with Aston Villa (of course) bouncing back from last years play-off heartbreak against Fulham to claim their place back at the top table of English football... but I am biased – Come on Villa!!

The Championship Play-Off Final is now estimated to be worth £180 Million to the winners, so club owners and CEO’s will be nervously biting their nails and staring at their P&L’s whilst fans will not care at all about the cash... just the glory!

Once all of these questions have been answered of course, we have the Nations League Finals in Portugal to look forward to when we will again support the boys wearing the three lions as they take England to Glory!!

Winning at Walking

Brush off your mud encrusted walking boots, dust off your trainers and head outdoors! This coming May is 'National Walking Month'!

Walking is simple, free, and one of the easiest ways to get more active, lose weight and become healthier.

Sometimes overlooked as a form of exercise, walking briskly can help you build stamina, burn excess calories and make your heart healthier. You don't have to walk for hours. A brisk 10-minute daily walk has lots of health benefits and counts towards your recommended 150 minutes of weekly exercise.

Pick up the pace!...

A brisk walk is about 3 miles an hour, which is faster than a stroll. One way to tell if you're walking briskly is if you can still talk but can't sing the words to a song.

If you're not very active but are able to walk, increase your walking distance gradually.

If you're not active because of a medical condition, get advice on exercising with a disability.

Make it regular!...

The easiest way to walk more is to make walking a habit. Think of ways to include walking in your daily routine.

- walking part of your journey to work
- walking to the shops
- using the stairs instead of the lift
- leaving the car behind for short journeys
- walking the kids to school
- doing a regular walk with a friend
- going for a stroll with family or friends after dinner

Make it entertaining!...

Walking while listening to music or a podcast can take your mind off the effort. Music can also get you into a rhythm and help you walk faster. You'll be surprised at how fast the time goes when you're walking to your favourite tunes.

Change the scene!...

Add variety to your walks. You don't have to travel to the countryside to find a rewarding walk. Towns and cities offer interesting walks, including parks, heritage trails, canal towpaths, riverside paths, commons, woodlands, heaths and nature reserves.

For inspiring walks, visit: www.walkengland.org.uk

For wheelchair users, visit : www.walkswithwheelchairs.com, and for parents with buggies, visit: www.walkswithbuggies.com.

Join a walking group!...

Walking in a group is a great way to start walking, make new friends and stay motivated. Local ramblers' groups often organise walks for health, leisure and as a means of getting around for people of all ages, backgrounds and levels of fitness. Why not have a look at our 'What's On Guide' for local walking groups in your area!

Next they will arrive at the beach with pebbles and shells, before reaching castaway camp with turtles and shark fishing. Finally voyagers will trek along the jungle path with bamboo, palms and ferns, tropical plants and distant mountains before completing the journey in the tribal village and cannibal camp.

Guilt Free Chocolate by Rebecca Tucker

So Easter is upon us, which usually means plenty of chocolate too! The good news is, when eaten in moderation, the right type of chocolate can actually be good for us. Something to think about when choosing your Easter eggs this year...

The healthiest forms of chocolate are dark chocolate (70% cocoa content or higher) and cacao nibs, the original, natural form. (Just in case you are wondering, the health benefits of milk or white chocolate, and any of the processed sweetened stuff are slim to none!) Here's what it can do for your health.

1. Fights against disease

Dark chocolate and cacao nibs are high in antioxidants, which help fight free radicals that can damage the cells in your body. Two groups of antioxidants found in dark chocolate are flavonoids and polyphenols. The higher the percentage of cocoa in your chocolate bar, the greater the number of antioxidants.

2. Good for heart health

Research also shows the flavonols in dark chocolate have a positive effect on heart health by lowering blood pressure, improving blood flow to the heart and making blood less sticky and able to clot.

3. Better brain function

Eating chocolate also increases the flow of blood to the grey matter in the brain. It's been suggested that cocoa flavonols would benefit conditions associated with reduced blood flow to the brain, including dementia and stroke. A study of the elderly that looked at consumption of flavonols lead to better cognitive function.

4. Makes you happy!

The essential amino acids in dark chocolate help increase the production of the happy hormone serotonin, which can help alleviate feelings of anxiety and depression. Chocolate also contains the chemical phenylethylamine, which occurs naturally in your body and gives you the same boost you feel when you fall in love.

set over the simmering water, stirring occasionally.

Once melted, tip into the prepared tin and smooth with a spatula so the chocolate is evenly distributed. Scatter over the remaining ingredients and chill in the fridge until the chocolate sets (about 30 mins). Peel off the parchment and break into pieces. Store in an airtight container for up to a month (if it lasts that long!).

St. George's Cross

Tuesday 23rd April is the day when nationalism sets in and England's patron saint St. George is celebrated. The iconic flag of England is a red cross on a white background.

There are many countries around the world that share the same colour scheme in their flags too!

Austria, Bahrain, Canada, Denmark, Georgia, Gibraltar, Greenland, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Japan, Latvia, Malta, Monaco, Northern, Cyprus, Peru, Poland, Singapore, Switzerland, Tonga, Tunisia & Turkey.

The colours used in flags are often loaded with meaning and will often represent similar themes throughout the globe.

- Black: Often used to represent determination, ethnic heritage and/or the defeat of enemies. It can also be used as a symbol of death or mourning.
- White: Seen as a symbol of peace, purity and harmony, and has also been used to represent surrender in times of battle.

• Red: Stands for power, revolution, vibrancy and war (symbolic of bloodshed). Other meanings include courage and domination, while it can also be viewed as an alert of danger.

• Blue: Signifies determination, liberation, alertness and good fortune.

• Green: Often seen as a symbol of agricultural influence, as well as prosperity and fertility. It can also be viewed as youthfulness and hope.

• Yellow (or Gold): Has long been viewed as a symbol of wealth and energy, as in the sun. It can also be used to represent happiness.

• Orange: Viewed as representation of courage and sacrifice.

Caring for Carers

When we have a loved one or family member with a disability or who develops a long-term illness, many of us face important decisions about their care. In the UK one in ten people provides care to someone and this figure is rising and three in five people will be carers at some point in their lives in the UK.

Many of the UK's caring community are unpaid family members and their contribution to the economy is estimated to be £132bn a year. That's more than the Creative Industries in the UK (£130bn) or the Hospitality Sector (£100bn).

Sometimes sadly, the responsibility of care-giving falls on the shoulders of those themselves that need care. Oftentimes elderly or infirm themselves, or even more shockingly they are children caring for a parent.

Only half of young carers have a particular person in school who recognises that they are a carer and helps them. Often these young carers have to miss or cut short school days because of their caring role.

Sadly, 68% of young carers are bullied in schools.

Many services are only funded to work with young carers up to the age of 18 and often young carers are worried about moving on as they feel there is no support for them.

Young adult carers aged between 16 and 18 years are twice as likely to be not in education, employment, or training. Based on Census figures there are estimated to be at least 376,000 young adult carers in the UK aged 16–25. Being a carer has significant health effects on the carer themselves and 45% of young adult carers report to have mental health problems.

One in five people aged 50–64 are carers in the UK and 65% of older carers (aged 60–94) have long-term health problems or a disability themselves, many stating that being a carer has an adverse effect on their own health.

One third of older carers say they have cancelled treatment or an operation for themselves because of their caring responsibilities.

There are 4.27 million carers of working age living in the UK; 2.44 million (57%) of these are women and 1.83 million (43%) are men. Over half of those who are not working say that they want to do so. Nearly one in eight workers is a carer and one in five carers gives up employment to care.

Over half of carers have borrowed money to enable them to provide care and almost two thirds of carers have used all of their savings to cover the costs of caring.

In a survey, 35% of carers had missed out on state benefits because they didn't realise they were entitled to it.

It is clear from the experiences of carers that much more needs to be done to provide fit-for-purpose and easily accessible social care and respite services. Caring can be a lonely endeavour and supporting those that care should be of utmost importance.
