ART CLASS STARTS SOON ABSOLUTE BEGINNERS TO IMPROVERS WILL LOVE THIS COURSE!

GREAT NEWS if you're looking for something fun to do over the next few months! We are now taking enquiries for a NEW 14 week part-time Art Class (once a week for three hours), which starts soon in your area.

Absolute Beginners to Improvers - Just Like You!

The course is designed to be fun for absolute beginners who have never picked up a brush before, through to improvers.

Step-by-Step Guidance

We adapt to each student's needs and give them all the guidance and help they need to develop their artistic skills. The curriculum is fun, comprehensive and interesting. Over the course we will explore four different media; pencil drawing & sketching, oil pastel painting and techniques, painting and blending with water colours and acrylics. Step-by-step tuition in the basic techniques and secrets needed to create beautiful pieces of art.

Still Life To Landscapes

By the end of the course, students have created a minimum of 12 pieces of their very own original art they can enjoy forever, from simple still life and flower studies to beautiful countryside landscape scenes.

Fun, Easy Classes

Learn to draw faces, friends, family, pets in the first few weeks. We make it fun and easy for you.

Young at Heart

Learn new skills you will enjoy forever, meet new friends and to have a fun experience you will always remember! It's open to adults of all ages and runs over 3 months – plenty of time to master your new hobby.

Limited Places

To maintain our high standards of tuition, classes are restricted to small numbers – so places are limited!

Dear Readers,

The summer holidays are just around the corner and we've got everything crossed that we'll have some sunny sunny days! A few nice weekends sat outside with a cool drink will really do the trick!

This summer it's the 50th anniversary of the moon landing. The moment when the whole world held its breath and watched transfixed as Neil Armstrong slowly descended the ladder to the surface of the moon. We've found some interesting moon facts to celebrate!

This July we also see 'Global Tiger Day' which raises awareness of the plight of the largest of the big cats and their diminishing numbers. We've also got instructions on how to make a cute tiger mask with your little one!

Have a fab summer! The LOCAL LINKS team

Humankind's Greatest Achievement

ow many movies, songs and anecdotes have sprung from humanity's first landing on the moon? This milestone event, which took place on July 20, 1969, seemed to encapsulate both the frenzy and change of the Sixties.

It was on 20th July that astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin ("Buzz") Aldrin Jr. bounced among lunar craters and Armstrong uttered the oftquoted line, "One small step for man, one giant leap for mankind." But did you know that the Apollo spacecraft itself weighed 44 tons and stood nearly 60 ft. high?

The famous Apollo 11 landing was only one mission in several decades of space exploration. During this tremendous period, the USSR and the United States led the way in the exploration of the great unknown of space.

Television sets around the world were tuned into the historic lunar landing of Apollo 11 on July 20, 1969. For those who witnessed the event, the team of three Apollo 11 astronauts — Neil Armstrong, "Buzz" Aldrin, and Michael Collins (who orbited the craft around the moon)—seemed to embody the ideals and hopes of all human beings.

From this trip and subsequent Apollo missions, much was learned about the physical constitution and early history of the earth's only natural satellite, including information about magnetic fields, heat flow, volcanism, and seismic activity. The total lunar rock sample returned to earth weighed nearly 900 lbs. (400 kg).

Earlier advances in rocket technology allowed for the initial lift-off of the Apollo spacecraft. The three-stage Saturn V rocket, developed 7.5 million lbs. (3.4 million kg) of thrust at liftoff, giving the Apollo spacecraft a powerful boost. At launch, the total assembly stood 363 ft (110 m) high and weighed more than 3,000 tons.

Did you know that...

The surface of the Moon features a huge number of impact craters from comets and asteroids that have collided with the surface over time. Because the Moon lacks an atmosphere or weather these craters remain well preserved.

Although research is continuing, most scientists agree that the Moon features small amounts of water.

The Moon rotates on its axis in around the same length of time it takes to orbit the Earth. This means that from Earth we only ever see around 60% of its surface (50% at any one time).

The side that we can see from Earth is called the near side while the other side is called the far side (it is sometimes called the dark side despite the fact that it is illuminated by the Sun just as much as the near side).

The Moon is very hot during the day but very cold at night. The average surface temperature of the Moon is 107 degrees Celsius during the day and -153 degrees Celsius at night.

The Earth's tides are largely caused by the gravitational pull of the Moon.

lobal Tiger Day, often called International Tiger Day on 29th July, is an annual celebration to raise awareness for tiger conservation. The goal of the day is to promote a global system for protecting the natural habitats of tigers and to raise public awareness and support for tiger conservation issues.

According to the latest WWF estimates. there are only 3,890 tigers left in the wild, whilst at the beginning of the 20th century their number exceeded 100,000. But these figures seem to be conservative, since data of other populations aren't considered. The situation could be worse than expected. And Bangladesh confirms it, by releasing the new census of the Sundarbans National Park that registered only 100 tigers approximately, compared to

You will need: Large paper plate Orange and black paint Orange and black card or craft foam. the 440 individuals in 2004. The lack of accurate data on these animals' status doesn't allow defining urgent actions to be taken.

In 2010, Saint Petersburg hosted the Tiger Summit, in which countries committed to the goal Tx2, the doubling of wild tigers by 2022. We are more than a third of the way to 2022, so need to move at a faster, more determined pace if we hope to achieve the Tx2 goal.

In recent years, conservation work and the commitment of various governments has halted the decline in global tiger numbers. But there's a lot more work to do.

Black pipe cleaners Glue Thin elastic

Instructions:

Paint the back of the paper plate orange and leave to dry. Only when completely dry, paint on some black stripes - you'll need patience! For younger children you may want to pre-paint the orange paint.

When the paint is dry cut out your eye holes.

If you have children, why not have a tiger day learning about tigers and making this tiger mask below! RARRR!

Twist together 3 pipe cleaners in the middle. Glue these to the centre of the mask.

Cut out a black nose from foam or card and glue this in the middle of the pipe cleaners.

Cut out 2 ears from orange foam or card. Glue these to the top of the face.

Make a small hole in either side of the face. Tie a piece of elastic through to hold your mask on.

ut them in June, come again soon. Cut them in July they'll surely die!".

The showers we had last month have resulted in good crops of thistles and nettles and one of our jobs this month will be to cut them off.

There are different ways of getting rid of them - we could use sprays but we prefer to mechanically cut them, hopefully before they've seeded. I know birds and butterflies appreciate them for food and habitat but they are not in short supply, they take up space where grass could grow and they are very persistent. It's quite an enjoyable job to do, looking back at a 'clean' field gives you a degree of satisfaction!

Our sheep have been shorn and we have wormed the lambs, giving them a spray of fly repellant at the same time. This should last for several weeks, depending on the weather and keep them safe from green bottle flies and their maggots.

Like all medicines, there is, what is called a 'withdrawal' period – this is a period of time those treated cannot enter the food chain and it is determined by the strength of the component chemical used. We have to decide beforehand when we are likely to be selling and then choose a product that fits in. Just the same with cattle.

It's time to start combining cereals and then baling the resulting straw. Potatoes will need irrigation and you can see the automated hoses moving along the rows if you watch.

Soft fruits are ready to be picked, as are the salad vegetables and this is labour intensive - a bit of a problem if temporary staff is unavailable!

Fly tipping is becoming a horrendous problem. Everyone can see it but why does it happen? Who is doing it? Is it vours?

Look Young & Feel Great!

Hello Hayfever! by Rebecca Tucker

tchy, watery eyes? Constantly sneezing? Runny or blocked nose? Itchy throat, nose, mouth and ears? Yes it's that time of year again. If you're feeling the effects of this seasonal allergy, you might be surprised to hear that changing what you eat can have a big impact on the severity of your symptoms.

Some foods will make the symptoms of hayfever worse, whilst others are naturally anti-inflammatory so can help reduce symptoms.

Foods containing high levels of histamine can intensify symptoms. These include chocolate (sorry!), tomatoes, aubergines and many fermented foods like vinegar, sauerkraut, yoghurt, miso, soy sauce, and canned fish.

There are also foods that, while they are not high in histamine themselves, are 'histamine liberators' and can trigger your cells to release histamine. These include strawberries, pineapple, bananas, citrus fruits and egg whites.

Dairy products stimulate the body to produce more mucus, making blocked noses or ears much worse. Matured cheeses also contain high levels of histamine. And sugar, which causes your body to produce more histamine, can further exacerbate your symptoms.

Foods to add in or increase when you have hayfever

Some foods are anti-histamine foods and disrupt or block histamine receptors, helping to reduce allergy symptoms. These include foods containing:

Quercetin - Onions, garlic, goji berries, asparagus, all berry fruits, apples, kale, okra, peppers, plums and red grapes.

Beta carotene - Sweet potato, carrots, butternut squash, red and yellow peppers, apricots, peas, broccoli, dark leafy greens like kale, and romaine lettuce.

Vitamin C - Blackcurrants, blueberries, peppers, kale, collard leaves, broccoli, kiwis, mango, courgettes, and cauliflower.

Local Honey - This may also be helpful because over time it may help your body become more familiar with the pollen entering your system and reduce the inflammatory response it makes.

What to drink - Drink plenty of water to thin the mucous membranes and reduces that 'blocked up' feeling.

Green tea - is packed full of antioxidants and has been proven to block one of the receptors involved in immune responses.

Ginger tea - has been shown to help reduce allergic reactions such as those associated with havfever. Peppermint tea is worth trying because peppermint contains menthol, natural decongestant. а Nettle tea may help to relieve inflammation of the upper respiratory tract and ease nasal congestion, sneezing and itching.

Anti-inflammatory approach

Hayfever is an inflammatory condition and may be further helped by including other types of food that calm the inflammatory response. Top of the list are foods containing omega 3 fatty acids.These include all types of oily fish (like salmon, trout, sardines, halibut and cod) as well as flaxseed and walnuts.

Coconut oil is another antiinflammatory oil and can be used in cooking and baking or added to smoothies.

As well as adding flavour to your food, herbs like parsley, sage, thyme, oregano and basil have anti-inflammatory properties as do many spices, including turmeric, ginger, cardamom, cinnamon, clove, fennel and nutmeg.

Neutering FAQs by Scarsdale Vets

ervous about your pet being neutered? We have put together a list of FAQs for when it comes to neutering your pet.

Can my pet eat normally after being neutered?

We would normally recommend a recovery or intestinal diet after surgery. These tend to be palatable to encourage them to eat, bland as not to upset their gastrointestinal system (which can be a little sensitive after an anaesthetic) and contains the right nutrition to aid healing.

Can neutering change my pet's behaviour?

Cats

Neutering tom cats can reduce the risk of roaming, urine spraying and aggression.

Neutering females will stop the cats coming into heat so will eliminate the behaviours associated with this i.e. excessive vocalisation, rolling and even roaming to find a mate.

Dogs

We like to aim for male dogs to reach maturity before castration but if there are no issues with nervous behaviour towards other dogs, people or new environments castration can be done from 6 months. It can help reduce urine marking and humping (although this can be due to excitement). Castration can help with some behavioural problems but is not always the answer, so we recommend an appointment with our vets or behaviourist to discuss fully. There is always the option for chemical castration in behaviour cases to see if castration will help.

Bitch spaying will eliminate them coming into season and any problems related to this i.e. prevent the risk of phantom/false pregnancies. Spaying early has no effect on behaviour unless there is in-house dog to dog aggression and spaying will make this worse

Rabbits

Neutering your rabbit can limit aggression and stop urine spraying

How long after neutering before we can take our dog out for walks?

We would usually advise that you keep your dog rested for 24-48 hours post-surgery with just gentle exercise in the garden. After this we would then advise short lead walks until they are seen for their post op check.

What are the risks of neutering?

There is always a risk with a general anaesthetic, but your pets will be given a full health check on the day of admission and they will be fully monitored throughout the procedure by our qualified nurses. We have all the latest monitoring equipment very similar to human hospitals that check oxygen levels, ECG and blood pressure to name a few.

With any surgical procedures there is a risk of bleeding and infection, but this is closely monitored, and all our surgeons are experienced.

Perfect Picnics

uly is 'Picnic Month' and with the summer holidays looming what better way to enjoy the great outdoors than packing a picnic and taking off somewhere picturesque for a walk and a relaxing brunch, lunch or afternoon tea?

Imagine the scene, sat outside, blanket spread out and you realise you've forgotten the plates! Nightmare! Some things you'll forget and some things you won't realise you'll need until you need them! Here's our handy checklist of items to bring with you so that you have every eventuality covered!

1. SUNSCREEN

Wishful thinking considering the weather we've had so far this summer but you never know. While lunching under an umbrella or tree can reduce the impact of UV rays, skin damage is still possible in the shade.

2. BABY WIPES

Even if you're without kids, baby wipes are a godsend for all those unforeseen spills and sticky hands. While hand sanitizer also kills off bacteria, wet wipes can remove dirt and stains.

3. BUG SPRAY

Reduce the chances of insect bites by taking along and liberally applying bug spray. Remember to apply after sunscreen.

4. BLANKET

It's easy to opt for picnic destinations that have chairs or tables provided, but on a beautiful day, seating might be limited. Don't forget to bring along a blanket for both seating and spreading your food out on.

5. BOTTLE OPENER

Keep from resorting to desperate measures by remembering to pack a bottle opener for those bottles with pry-off lids. The same goes for another picnic essential: the corkscrew.

6. KNIFE

A small knife can be one of the most versatile tools in a picnic basket, used to spread condiments, slicing fruit or cutting sandwiches at your picnic destination. Small blades that fold or come with sheaths are best for packing away as they are safer.

7. FIRST AID SUPPLIES

Whether your picnic includes a hike in the woods or just a day at the local park, a first aid kit is a must. Basic supplies like bandages, paracetamol and bite and sting salves will keep you prepared.

8. MINI CONDIMENTS AND SEASONINGS

Instead of lugging the whole bottle of ketchup or mayonnaise, why not fill mini plastic takeaway tubs (think pickle tray) for ease of dipping when you're out in the wilds.

9. KITCHEN TOWEL

While napkins or paper towels are easy to pack and dispose of, a sturdy kitchen towel offers more versatility. Towels can be used to cover foods from bugs, provide extra protection when wrapped around wine glasses or bottles, and can do a better job of sopping up spills than handfuls of paper napkins.

10. RUBBISH BAGS

You don't have to be a scout to follow the rule of leaving your picnic site "cleaner than you found it." Bin bags can also double as rain ponchos in case of unexpected summer storms, or if sliced open, can lay under your blanket to keep wet grass from seeping through.

Let's Hear It For The Girls!

ts difficult to know what to make of the Women's World Cup which has just seen the USA emerge as Wold Champions again; but let me give you my view anyway!

I thoroughly enjoyed watching the Lionesses in their pursuit of the ultimate prize in football and it was enjoyable to watch the 'personality pieces' as we heard various players' background stories and got to know them as their characters shone through - all different but all with a story of determination to succeed in a sport which has been seen as 'a bit of fun' or even derided by football fans in general - well their World Cup campaign certainly put an end to that!

Women's Football in England (along with a few of our European neighbours) has been professional for а couple of years now and the improvement in fitness and skill levels is there for all to see, albeit still lagging behind the USA in these areas where the game has been professional for longer and is actually played by more women and girls than men and boys - in fact, the USA squad are currently in significant conflict with their own governing body over equal pay with the men's side, claiming that they are actually far more successful than their counterparts... male thev have a point!

So, as a nation (almost) we sat down for England's games and cheered on the side, desperately hoping they would be able to do what the men's side have frequently failed to do and emulate their cricketing colleagues by being crowned Women's World Champions.

However; as with the men's team they fell short, losing to the USA at the semi-final stage and we genuinely felt for them at the final whistle as they fell to the ground, distraught at their failure to get to a final we all believed they could make.

This is where I believe it becomes difficult to honestly assess the tournament from an England perspective our desire to embrace the women's game perhaps results many sensible pundits in being a little reticent in giving an assessment they believe in - but if the women's team are to be judged upon their performance alone (and to a woman they insist that they do) they will have to get used to criticism - I saw several very lively debates across sports media outlets with cheerleaders for the women's game taking genuine offence with those criticising the teams performance at the tournament.

Well tough! – the women's game wants to be taken seriously (rightly so) and their performance was actually not good enough!

To finish fourth when the previous squad finished third is not progress and yes, we enjoyed their efforts but the bottom line is that as a national side we went backwards in France, not forwards.

We gave the ball away far too often and lacked the physicality of the USA team in certain areas – Lionesses Coach Phil Neville must also take some of the criticism being aimed at his players - he insisted to anyone who would listen that England could win the tournament and added that not reaching the final would be 'failure' - im sure he will learn but that is a dangerous statement to make for a Coach and it is certainly coming back to bite him!

He also managed to offend the 2015 squad by claiming (after his side had lost to Sweden) that the third and fourth place fixture was a 'nonsense' game - third place being something the 2015 girls were very proud in achieving – this , having said the day before the game they were 'desperate' to achieve third place.

All-in-all a fabulous tournament to watch and enjoy – but with improvements needed both on and off the field!

Your Life Journey by Fay Petcher

There may come a time when you are at a crossroads in your life. This can be a daunting place to be in as you don't know which way to go and what is going to happen when you take your chosen route!

Going through a break-up, separation or divorce is one of those times. It is one of the most stressful and challenging things you will ever go through. You may be dealing with depression, stress, anxiety and anger as well as not sleeping, going over negative thoughts repeatedly and not getting any answers. This can be doubly difficult if you have children or didn't want to be at this crossroads in the first place.

Having a good support network around you is vital for both your health and wellbeing. Many people are now turning to a Separation and Divorce Coach to help them get over their breakup faster and to put the control back in their lives.

Divorce Practitioners can help with things like low confidence and self-esteem, anxiety, trauma due to abusive ex partners, negative thought patterns and even dating but most importantly, they can help you discover that this can be the start of the most exciting and fulfilling time of your life!! There is no magic wand to make everything go away but there are things you can do right now to start feeling better!!

Feel Positive Coaching specialises in helping both men and women through their breakup, separation and divorce. Call or email them now to book your 30-minute free consultation and start to feel positive about your future!!

- 3 things you can do right now:
- Smile at the next person you see! (happiness spreads happiness)
- Do something differently whether that be taking a different route home or cooking something you have never cooked.
- Write your bucket list. It is very important to have personal goals and dreams however small.
